Historic Huguenot Street is located in New Paltz, New York, approximately 90 miles (140 km) north of New York City.The seven stone houses and several accompanying structures in the 10-acre National Landmark Historic District were likely built in the early 18th century by Huguenot settlers fleeing discrimination and religious persecution in France and what's now southern Belgium.

The deindustrialization of Detroit has been a major factor in the population decline of the city.. Role of the automobile industry. Before the advent of the automobile, Detroit was a small, compact regional manufacturing center. In 1900, Detroit had a population of 285,000 people, making it the thirteenth-largest city in the U.S. Over the following decades, the growth of the automobile

There are infographic boards there about Pililia and the wind farm. One interesting fact on why Pililia was chosen as the site for these wind turbines is that these hills have a natural wind corridor with a monthly average of 36kmh windspeed passing through the hill and heightens during Amihan (north-east winds) season from October to March.

Since the brick factory closed down, most of the men have been driving taxis or working security at the town's innumerable shops. There's no industry to speak of. The main problem with small towns is the lack of choice, but here there's almost always a choice (the hospital is an exception), what the Brits might call "the other club
